INTERNATIONAL COOPERATIONS

A TOP PRIORITY

An increasing internationalization of our Department of Economics is a major lever of our policy of excellence and complementarity between research, teaching and studying.

“The Sorbonne School of Economics, with its tradition of humanities, places international openness at the heart of its strengths. We are dedicated to training citizens of the world capable of responding to the complexity of the challenges of today and tomorrow. I am convinced that economists have an important role to play in the years to come. To train these economists by transcending borders, both disciplinary and national, is the driving force of our school and what we work towards every year.”

Ariane Dupont-Kieffer - Former Dean of the Sorbonne School of Economics, Vice-President in charge of CSR.

“Our University has a long-standing tradition of openness and welcome, favored by its attractiveness at the international level. One priority of the Sorbonne School of Economics is to strengthen the international relations between students, professors and researchers. We widely encourage our students to go abroad because we are convinced that such an opening up to the world is a real strength in their intellectual development. We also offer various double degrees with prestigious universities throughout the world and we propose on our campus degrees of excellence, some of them fully taught in English.”

Rémi Bazillier and Laurine Martinoty - Professors in charge of International Relations

WHY ECONOMICS AT THE SORBONNE SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS?

The broad selection of courses and degrees at the Sorbonne School of Economics attracts a large number of students each year.

They focus on different techniques and prepare the students for a career in academia or in other sectors of the economy. The education offers thus a good equilibrium between university professors and working professionals, gathering all possible perspectives on a vast selection of topics. Students can develop their own academic path and progress individually. For that, our professors, teachers, teaching assistants and personnel ensure the appropriate guidance for the students to be able to achieve outstanding academic results in the discipline of economics.

WHAT CAN FOREIGN STUDENTS EXPECT?

- The Sorbonne School of Economics offers foreign students a tailor-made agenda that perfectly fits the study program in the respective home universities. The students can thus find:
 - More than 25 courses in the field of Economics offered in English (e.g. International Trade, European Integration, Development Economics...).
 - Courses in other departments, i.e. Political Science, Philosophy, Business Administration and Mathematics.
 - A broad selection of degrees to choose their courses from (e.g. Applied Economics, Development Economics, Financial Economics, International Economics, etc.).

- The flagship diploma of the Sorbonne School of Economics, the DU PSME: Panthéon-Sorbonne Master in Economics. Created in 2007, the Panthéon-Sorbonne Master in Economics is meeting a triple challenge. The PSME trains international English-speakers in the field of Economics at the Master level and French language. The program of study prepares students for further specialization in the 2nd year master programs in France (Ex. Sorbonne School of Economics, Paris School of Economics, Toulouse School of Economics) or elsewhere in Europe. The recruitment of qualified and motivated individuals from all corners of the globe has allowed us to build a world-wide network of highly educated, open-minded students with expertise in various fields of economics. See psme.pantheonsorbonne.fr for more details on this program.

UNA Europa and the Joint programmes

Eleven leading European research universities have come together to create a unique alliance – Una Europa. Our universities have been educating Europe for over 1,000 years. Together, we teach over 500,000 students and count almost 100,000 university staff among our network, with digital learners numbering in the millions. Una Europa aims to draw on our collective strengths to create a truly European inter-university environment, a University of the Future.

See more information about Una Europa programmes at :
<https://www.una-europa.eu/about>

The Sorbonne School of Economics is participating in the Certificate in European Studies and in the future Bachelor in Sustainability (BASUS). Una Europa's 1st Bachelor programme: the Una Europa Bachelor in European Studies, is a unique programme co-developed by eight Una Europa partner universities.

In the joint Bachelor in European Studies, students will study the fundamental aspects and values of the European Union, as well as European states and societies, in a multilingual environment. Adopting a multidisciplinary approach, students will learn how to understand and analyse Europe and its role in the world. Through the extensive mobility programme, students will not only learn about Europe, but also experience, live, and grow in an international setting.

The University of Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne, mobility partner of this programme, offers BAES students the possibility to study at Paris 1 during semesters 3, 4 and/or 5 in the framework of the BAES majors and minors. Paris 1 offers four majors and four minors in law, political science, economics, and history.

More information on the BAES official website.

BECOMING A “SORBONNE ECONOMIST”

STUDY IN PARIS

Year in and year out Paris attracts a great number of young international students and finds itself rated as the best student city in the world. As it is one of the most touristic and culturally rich cities, it is very popular among young, intellectual and ambitious minds from all over the world:

- A dynamic city with its unique culture, its museums and architecture, its nightlife, parks and plenty of other things to discover.
- An international city: more than 10% of the city population is foreign. Coming from various places in the world, they enrich the city and its culture to make it a special melting pot.
- One of the most dense economic places in the world. The students can find world-class opportunities in all possible fields for internships and professional experiences.

CAMPUS

The Economics Research Center, Pierre-Mendès France Center and Panthéon Center of the university of Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne

Making it easy for foreign students:

- Housing facilities available for incoming students.
- No extra tuition fees, as students enroll in their home university during their stay abroad.
- Easy integration. Incoming students have the possibility to participate in an introduction week organized for all of them. A vast offer of sports activities and cultural events organized by the university or by student associations of all kind, etc.
- Companionship of students with special needs.
- And much more!
